“I placed an order for the library media case because of the savings compared to what we had been paying. We have already seen a huge savings in the District’s supply budget. Even our library members have commented on the quality of the case.”

— Annie Eldin, Spokane County Library

Cherry Hill Publishing audiobooks are available in unabridged audio-CD and MP3-CD format.

Featured Titles

The Book of Obeah, by Sandra Carrington Smith. Read by Dave Fennoy.

Dave Fennoy’s narration makes this audiobook! When Melody Bennet embarks to fulfill her grandmother’s final wish to have her ashes scattered in a remote bayou in Louisiana, she has no idea of her family’s voodoo connections. Melody is pursued, threatened, and doesn’t know whom to trust--but where it excels is as an education on all that is voodoo. Fennoy keeps the listener entranced, imbuing every character with such life and so beautifully evoking the atmosphere that one can’t help but mop one’s brow in the heat and watch out for snakes. 2014 Audie Award Finalist.

The Nectar of Angels, by Dane St. John. Read by Roger Watson.

David Arrowsmith recounts the captivating saga of his life in fourteenth-century England and France to the French chronicler Creton. R.D. Watson’s first-rate storytelling elevates the novel to a magnificent experience right to the last syllable. The theme of wine, “nectar,” is threaded throughout the novel; wine merchants are the backbone of the economy, and their alliances influence royals. Watson expertly brings alive all the interesting and compelling characters David encounters. Winner of AudioFile Earphones Award.
